

I hope you don't allow the banking industry to call homes that have signed up for the no call list. If I want to speak to someone at my bank or find out about their services, I will call them. I have signed up for the no call list, and don't want to be bothered with any sales calls or surveys. I have caller id and use it every time the phone rings. Usually when we don't recognize the number the caller will hang up as soon as the answering machine starts, so I know it is not a call I needed to take, but I still hate the bother. Please don't change the ruling!
